MENTAL TELEGRAPHY.

INFLUENCE OF MIND ON MIND STRONGLY ILLUSTRATED.
A strange story of thought transference—Two Well Known Men Conceive the Same Idea at About the Same Time.
An Old Experience of Mark Twain's.

Now I come to the oddest thing that ever happened to me. Two or three years ago I was lying in bed and thinking one morning I was so tired that I was wishing down into my camp and expended with such comprehensive effectiveness as to sweep the vicinity clean of rubbishy reflections and fill the air with their dust and flying fragments. This idea, stated in simple phrases, was that the time was ripe and the market ready for a certain book; a book which ought to command attention and be of peculiar interest—to wit, a book about the Republic of the Americas.
The Great Bonanza was a new wonder then, and everybody was talking about it. It seemed to me that the person best qualified to write this book was Mr. William H. Wright, a journalist of Virginia, Nev., by whose side I had scribbled many months when I was a reporter there ten or twelve before. He might be alive still; he might be dead; I could not tell; but I would write him anyway.
I began by merely and modestly suggesting that he take such a book, but I tried to map out what I thought ought to be the plan of the work, he being an old friend, and not going to taking good intentions for ill. I even dealt with details and suggested the order and sequence which they should follow. I was about to put the manuscript in an envelope, when the thought occurred to me that if this book should be written at my suggestion, it should be uncomfortable so I concluded to keep my letter back until I should have secured a publisher.

I picked up my document and dropped it to the floor. I was so tired that I did not name a day for a business consultation. He was out of town on a far journey. My note remained unanswered, and the matter had passed out of my mind. The 21st of March the day among them I think whose discrepancy was in a hand which seemed dimly familiar to me. I could not "place" it at first, but presently I succeeded. It was Wright, visiting relative who was present.
"Now I do to a miracle. I will tell you everything this letter contains—data, signature and all—without breaking the seal. It is from Mr. Wright of Virginia, Nev., and is dated the 21st of March—seven days before the proposed date of the Great Bonanza, and the whole I, as a friend, think of the idea what I, as a friend, think of the idea, so, their order and sequence so and so, and he will close with a history of the chief feature of the book, the Great Bonanza."
